

The system is built inside the cars.
It does not require any extended infrastructure along the existing road network.