

The other vehicles in the queue close the gap and continue together on their journey to the location where the road train separates once again into its individual vehicles.